You get it? Dayanim are judges. Din is judgement. LinkedIn in a social network. This is Link Din. Where judges network.

RABBI ANSWERS HIS PUPILS

Dear Rabbi. I want to look good at Simchas. These other men have Jewish jokes down to a science. Can you help me with a few jokes about proud Jewish mothers?

Shalom My Dear Pupil. Every proud Jewish mother speaks of her son the doctor. They always wanted their child to be a doctor. Now, they want their son to work in computers. Though, it doesn't sound the same to brag about 'my son, the computer technician.' So we'll stick to a few 'my son the doctor' genre of Jewish jokes to help you start.

•The One About the President About to be honored in the inaugural ball he calls his mom. 'Mom. I want you to come.' His mother is trying to get out of it, asking why. He tells her, 'I just became president of the USA. I'm the leader of our people. I want you to be at the dinner.' The next day, she's at the beauty salon. The stylist notes that she hasn't been there for years. He then asks, 'Why are you here?' The mother answers, 'You know my son the doctor? His brother is getting honored.'

'What my son does for his motha? He flies me to see him every year for my birthday. What a boy!' The next one says, 'My son is even better. For my birthday, he comes down to Florida and flies in my friends. Puts together a party. You wouldn't know of such things.' The other friend joins, 'My son is the best. Better than them all. He goes to a psychiatrist three times a week. Each time he spends five hundred dollars. And you know what he talks about? Me.'

•The Daughter Who Got Divorced Talking of Fran's daughter, Ethel asks, 'You mean the one who married the docta?' Fran, 'They broke off the wedding.' The next friend adds, 'The one who's with the lawyer.' Fran notes, 'That also didn't work out.' Another friend joins, 'Isn't that the girl that with the real estate develapa?' Fran again must respond, 'Ahh. That didn't work out either.' Ethel is amazed, 'Wow. From one daughter, so much Nachis..

Talk like a New Yorker with an 'a' instead of the 'r', and start each joke with a 'you know the one about...' That is Jewish tradition. All joking aside doctors should be praised. They're amazing. Some doctors can add ten years to your life just waiting in the reception room.

SERMON OF REBUKE- VAYAKHEL-PIKUDEI

Shabbat Shalom My Pupils...

(Shemot 35:1) 'Moshe gathered all the community of Israel...' I can't even gather you guys for Hamotzie... Everybody washed and we're waiting... Everybody thinks when we go to wash, they should have a conversation?!

You never want to talk to these people, except for when you're washing... He didn't gather the Israelites to hear a Bar Mitzvah boy read... I don't care that it was six months ago. It's painful. The kid pronounces the words... If it was the Katzenberg's kugel, nobody would've showed...

Moshe starts with Shabbat. If we could get a Minyin on Shabbat. After the commandment of Shabbat, we see the concept of people giving stuff to the Temple and the services... When people come together they give to the place of worship... I can't even call the shul together because nobody here shares...

Sharing is a Mitzvah... You didn't share. To be a community, you share. You piled up your plate. You came back to the table and said you got it for them... They can get up. You got the shnitzel for yourself Cheryl.

Everybody shared. They gave their valuables. Women gave bracelets and earrings... Nice ones. Not the ones with birds- Whatever that Michal Negrin stuff you bought is.

If that Bar Mitzvah kid was reading, the congregation would've said, 'We don't care if it's Shabbis. We want it to stop.'

Rivka's Notes on Rabbi Mendelchem's Drasha: He just got Bar Mitzvahed. It's painful. His dad wants him to enunciate. New rule in shul: You can't lead unless you do it real fast. Pronouncing words is not appreciated by anybody.

SHUL ANNOUNCEMENTS

This week's Torah reading is a double Parsha. You may want to show up late. It is going to be painful. To make it worse, the Bar Mitzvah boy is going to read a couple of the Aliyahs.

Rule: Dad's are not allowed near their children when their kid lead services. The dad standing there like a helicopter Jew adds to much time to the services, and it causes people to hate your child.

The weather is cold again. You can use that as your excuse for why you never come to shul.

The community Shabbat dinner is this coming Shabbat. We are going to have fore spice sized plates, as Cheryl found a way to pile up the whole shnitzel platter on her plate last year.

Don't eat at the Katzenbergs for Shabbat lunch. They have no idea how to make a decent potato kugel. They will kill your Shabbis afternoon.

The shul's Kugel Bakeoff is to take place next week.

That is two seconds of oven cleaner, and I am scarred. When Pesach cleaning, be careful. The oven cleaner will take off a layer of grease from your oven, and your finger. I had to replantate my index finger last Pesachs, after ensuring my kitchen was Kosher for the holiday.
